Listening Tour

I spend a good portion of January having phone meetings with the entire GC. The goal was to hear what everyone thinks about NAPA, where we are, and where we should be going. This was an honor and a wonderful experience. The results were emailed to the GC prior to the Spring meeting and will be discussed during the Spring meeting.

Global Enterprise Anthropology Summit

NAPA is sponsoring the Global Enterprise Anthropology Summit at Wayne State University. The Global Enterprise Anthropology Summit, building on the pathbreaking work of EPIC (Ethnographic Praxis in Industry Conference), and academic programs at leading universities, would be the first time that anthropologists in both industry and academia from all over the world have come together to discuss in depth and identify priorities for research and training, and identify Best Practices.
for the use of anthropology in contemporary enterprise challenges.

Business Anthropology Matters Initiative
NAPA is working closely with the Business Anthropology Matters Initiative, headed by Elizabeth Briody, Timothy Malefyt, Allen Batteau, and Bob Morais. Their initiative is to create more visibility of Business Anthropology during the 2017 AAA meetings. They are organizing sessions and workshops and NAPA is hosting most of these. Inga Treitler is the NAPA representative for recruiting students from applied departments to participate in the initiative.

Setting Priorities
I established 2 documents in preparation for the Spring GC meetings where we will discuss priorities for the upcoming years. These documents are the NAPA Listening Tour Summary and a spreadsheet of all NAPA activities. These documents will guide our discussion.

Issues / Motions for Board Resolution: No motions

Budget Request (Items and cost)

Our 2016 revenue was projected to be $14,360 but end of year revenue was only $11,859, a shortfall of $2,501. NAPA total expenditures in 2016 was $17,404. Subtracting the revenue of $11,859, NAPA spent $5,545 more than we took in.

Comments:

Between September, 2015 and September, 2016, NAPA membership dropped from 436 to 369, a decline of 18%.

NAPA still operates for the most part in a revenue neutral position, but that will prove more difficult in the membership continues to decline. The work of the Membership Committee looms as important for assisting NAPA in developing strategies regarding our asset pool. In other words, how do we use our asset pool to develop an even stronger organization?

Accomplishments

November 2016 meeting minutes circulated, revised, and approved by email.

Monthly online submissions for Anthropology News highlighting section news and work of members.

Improved coordination with the Communications Committee to share links to AN articles and content.

Work in Progress

The AN format has gone to online only apart from one annual print edition over the summer. Rachel Hall-Clifford, Alice Larotonda, and Lisa Henry are working to put together materials for our first 1-page content for the print edition. Online monthly submissions will continue as usual.
Problems Encountered and Recommended Solutions

We have begun advertising for potential AN submissions about members’ work through our NAPA communications channels. Other ideas for identifying interesting content are welcome.

AN co-contributing editor Alice Larotonda will conclude her service in May when she goes into the field. Suggestions of a new graduate student or young professional contributor are needed and should be sent to the Secretary.

| Accomplishments | • Submitted the proposal to the GC to officially form the AAP Editorial Board. It was discussed at the November 2016 meeting and is now being voted on.
• The AAA reported that the new published contract has been signed with Wiley-Blackwell after an intense preparation, bidding process and negotiation period. The publishing sections, like NAPA, will be receiving a significant increase in revenues once the new contract starts. Much of the success of this contract is due to the diligence NAPA and other publishing | sections put into rethinking how we do our scholarly/engaged/applied/practicing publishing work in effective, fair and efficient ways that made our portfolio even more valuable to the bidding companies.
- Current AAP editor, John Brett, was nominated and voted into a second term as AAP editor, a term that will end in 2019.

| Accomplishments | The NAPA Ethics Subcommittee on Revision to the Ethics Statement, chaired by Niel Tashima, has made substantial progress toward their assigned task over the last few months. They have responded to my initial comments on a working draft and created a substantially improved draft based on group feedback. I have reviewed the latest draft and sent a set of comments that, at this point, is more editorial than substantive in nature. The subcommittee will contemplate these suggestions (and no doubt add their own, better ideas) and create a | final draft for presentation to the Ethics Committee. The Ethics Committee will deliberate and make suggestions to augment the good work of the subcommittee, as appropriate, with the goal of having a final version to present to the Governing Council in time for the fall AAA meeting.

One subcommittee member, Lauren Penney, has done particularly strong work, and as such has been nominated by Niel Tashima and myself for the NAPA Volunteer Award.

FROM: Cathleen Crain, Chair Organizational Relations Committee

Committee Members
Cathleen Crain, Carol Ellick, Niel Tashima, and Joshua Liggett. Daniel Ginsberg, AAA Professional Services Fellow provides material support to the Committee and functions as an ex officio member.

Accomplishments
The Committee organized the 11th annual Careers Exposition that was held on Friday, November 18, 2016. Approximately 50 professional anthropologists participated in the Expo to provide career advice to new and young anthropologists.

Two new features of the Expo included expanded mentoring opportunities with “The Doctor is In: Campus to Career” featuring Riall Nolan, David McCurdy, William Beeman, and Jean Schensul providing mentoring to participants. NAPA provided instant mentoring as it does each year. This new feature was very popular with new/young professionals spending significant time with the “doctors”.

A second feature was two of the professional participants providing on-the-spot training. The first was the BOAS Network representative helping new professionals to develop their “elevator speeches”; for a limited number of participants these were videoed so that they could see and improve them. The second was an independent professional, Dawn Lehman, who ran a career mapping exercise with interested new professionals. Both of these offering were very popular with participants.

The Committee undertook heavy promotion to continue to grow attendance at the Expo. The AAA communications office was very helpful in disseminating the messages. Even with the promotion, the Minneapolis meeting was smaller than in the past few years and so Expo attendance was proportionately smaller, likely around 500.

Comments:
na
As in past years, the Expo had significant support from AAA, as well as from Consortium of Applied and Practicing Anthropology Programs (COPAA) and from CoPAPIA.

The evaluation for the Expo was included in a larger intercept survey supported by CoPAPIA. The surveys were conducted by CoPAPIA-generated volunteers and responses were conducted on IPads providing faster information turn-around. The results were consistent with previous years. There is a desire for a greater number and more diversity in the professionals at the Expo. There is also a desire for the Expo to be longer in duration, including requests for the Expo to be on each day of the AAA.

Work in Progress
The Committee will be undertaking planning and recruiting for the next meeting beginning in April of 2017. With a return to Washington, DC it is expected that attendance will be higher. The Committee is also considering ways and means of adding interest and variety to the Expo.

Problems Encountered and Recommended Solutions
There have been no problems encountered this year.

Issues / Motions for Board Resolution:
The Expo continues to provide NAPA with a high visibility opportunity to interact with young professionals and students as well as a cadre of senior, highly placed professional anthropologists. This is an opportunity for NAPA to highlight its contributions to the development of new and young professionals.

Budget Request (Items and cost)
This year’s Expo should return to its previous budget mark: approximately $2,300.

Future of Global Enterprise Anthropology Summit: NAPA’s endorsement

To the NAPA Governing Council, SfAA Santa Fe, March 30, 2017
From the Business Anthropology group: Inga Treitler  inga.treitler@gmail.com

What is the Future of Global Enterprise Anthropology Summit?
After review by the GC in the month of February, 2017, NAPA has lent its endorsement to the proposed Summit, which is currently in final fundraising stages. The following text in italics was prepared by Allen Batteau, Wayne State University. Participation will be by invitation, and representatives are from most of the world’s continents. During the GC review process, several details were added, and it is agreed that the NAPA logo will be displayed in all communications. The date and location have not been set.

Opinion and Recommendation: It is my opinion that a high profile event under the tent of AAA and NAPA that yields recommendations and contributes to the anthropological canon is critical. The international aspect and the summit characteristic lend an element that has not been possible before. The work in business anthropology at and by EPIC has been a powerful influence in anthropology, but has been limited by cost. This summit will be fully financed, creating a new venue for interaction among academia and private and nonprofit sectors. Enterprise Anthropology – the use of anthropological concepts and tools to solve practical problems in contemporary enterprises, including business, public entities, and civil society organizations, and the use of these engagements to develop new theoretical insights – is perhaps the most rapidly growing branch of the discipline of anthropology today. Enterprise Anthropology embraces concerns with product development, marketing and consumer behavior, organizational performance, international business, user experience in technological systems, innovative financial instruments, sustainability, and new forms of business in emerging economies. Several hundred anthropologists around the world on all continents are working on problems such as these, and we propose to bring their experience and insights to the attention of programs in academic anthropology. The Global Enterprise Anthropology Summit, building on the pathbreaking work of EPIC (Ethnographic Praxis in Industry Conference), and academic programs at leading universities, would be the first time that anthropologists in both industry and academia from all over the world have come together to discuss in depth and identify priorities for research and training, and identify Best Practices for the use of anthropology in contemporary enterprise challenges.

The Global Enterprise Anthropology Summit will have four objectives:

- Identifying the broad outlines of Enterprise or Business Anthropology in a culturally neutral frame, recognizing that quite often both the terms “enterprise” and “business” and “anthropology” are culturally freighted. If anthropology engaged in contemporary institutions is to be a sustainable discipline, it cannot be identified with any one particular culture or civilization.

- Beginning work and setting priorities for understanding Best Practices for Enterprise Anthropology in such areas as change management, design, environmental and cultural sustainability, user experience research, marketing and consumer behavior, and other specialties.

- Building a consensus on research and training priorities for the next generation of anthropology practitioners and scholars.

- Building a global network of academic and practicing Enterprise Anthropologists: at present, as evidenced by occupational titles and publications in business anthropology journals, there are more than 300 enterprise anthropologists worldwide.

EPICpeople: News for NAPA

To the NAPA Governing Council, SfAA Santa Fe, March 30, 2017
From the EPIC Liaison: Inga Treitler inga.treitler@gmail.com

Liaison activity
The NAPA – EPIC liaison activity consists largely of identifying and sharing critical EPIC developments with the anthropology practitioner community through the Praxanth listserv and in NAPA Notes, and Anthropology News.

The primary point of contact at EPIC has been Director of Communications and Content, Jennifer Collier Jennings. Much of the information that NAPA shares from EPIC concerns new EPICpeople developments and conference planning. With the following exciting new blog theme, there is a growing relationship with Mike Youngblood, who, though not part of the leadership group is becoming more involved in topics that are of concern in many anthropological practitioners’ work (sustainability; community wide engagement):

1. Exciting new EPIC developments in progress that engage with network of anthropologists/ethnographers
   a. Sustainability Blog theme organized by Anthropologist Mike Youngblood
i. Recruited contributors from the practicing anthropology community as well as ethnographically engaged sustainability experts-
   I. This blog marks a move in the direction of open conversation within the EPIC and the anthropology communities and reaches those outside both those groups https://www.epicpeople.org/sustainability-ethnography/
   II. New platforms for learning from business anthropologists in the field are being developed through courses, talks and tutorials, most require membership in EPICpeople, which is available at $150/year.

2. Ongoing resources
Job Board: https://www.epicpeople.org/job-board/

Summary and recommendation:
This is a good time to continue liaising with EPIC. New opportunities for ongoing learning, for potential collaborations, for jobs, and for participation in conversations that tackle humanities wicked problems can be found. The year round virtual community of EPICpeople makes it easier to engage with other members, without the high costs associated with conference attendance. For those in a position to do so, I recommend the investment in of membership, to participate in the online learning platforms.

TOPIC for GC DISCUSSION:
Should we consider proposing to EPIC, on behalf of NAPA, a departmental membership rate that gives graduate students access to materials including blogs and learning platforms?
